PREFACE

The Natural resource inventory is the assessment of the status of a given natural resource of an area at a given point in time. Population pressure results in over-exploitation of resources. The baseline information on the resources would help the administration for better planning and decision making. The main purpose of the report is to disseminate data on the natural resource up to the lowest administrative functionary to facilitate micro level planning and development. The efforts have been made to assess and document the information on land use land cover, crop, surface water resource, soils, slope, groundwater prospects, groundwater quality, geological information, and minerals resources in Chittoor district, Andhra Pradesh, based on the satellite remote sensing data and socioeconomic information.

The Department of Mines and Geology (DMG), Government of Andhra Pradesh (AP) requested the Andhra Pradesh Space Applications Center (APSAC) to update the district survey reports with availability of sand mineral information, major and minor mineral details, and river morphology for all the districts in the State. The District Survey report emphasizes and updated the major and minor minerals in the districts of AP. The District Survey reports are updated following the "Sustainable Sand Mining guidelines" issued in 2016 and 2020 and SO 741 of 2016 of the Ministry of Environment, Forests and Climate Change provided by the DMG. The comments received from the public, if found fit, shall be incorporated in the report. A list of leases in the district will be provided by the concerned Assistant Directors of Mines and Geology.

The report is an outcome of the efforts of the Scientists and Project Associates at APSAC. I heartily congratulate the team for compiling the report.

(Dr.Sundar Balakrishna, IFS)
Vice-Chairman
APSAC

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

Our sincere gratitude to Sri Gopal Krishna Dwivedi, IAS, Principal Secretary, Department of Mines and Geology, Govt. of Andhra Pradesh for whole-hearted support.

Our sincere gratitude to Sri Kona Sasidhar, IAS, Secretary to Government, Information Technology, Electronics and Communications (ITE&C), Govt. of Andhra Pradesh and the Chairman, APSAC Governing Body, for his constant encouragement.

We would like to express our sincere gratitude to Dr. Sundar Balakrishna, IFS, Special Secretary to Government, Information Technology, Electronics and Communications (ITE&C), Govt. of Andhra Pradesh and the Vice-Chairman, APSAC Govt. of Andhra Pradesh, for his meticulous guidance and supervision.

We are grateful to the Sri. V.G. Venkata Reddy, Director, Department of Mines and Geology, Govt. of Andhra Pradesh for entrusting the work for the preparation of District Survey Reports of Andhra Pradesh.

We owe a great deal to Sri. P Raja Babu, Joint Director, Department of Mines and Geology for his overall support and guidance during the execution of this work.

We are very much thankful to Dr.M.J.Ratnakanth Babu, Royalty Inspector (Head Office), Mines and Geology for his support to complete the work successfully.

We are also thankful to the District Mines and Geology Officer, Chittoor District for their support in providing information

Our sincere thanks are due to the scientific staff of APSAC who has generated all the thematic maps for District Survey Reports.

Chapter I – Introduction and General Profile

1.1 Administrative Setup

Chittoor district is located in the southern part of the state of Andhra Pradesh with Chittoor as its district headquarters. It is one of the districts of the Rayalaseema region.

Geographically, Chittoor district is bordered by the State of Tamil Nadu on the south, Karnataka on the west, and the districts of Annamaya and Tirupati are in the north. The total geographical area is approximately 6,855 square kilometres. Administratively, the district is divided into 4 Revenue divisions i.e. Chittoor, Kuppam, Nagari and Palamaner and comprising of 31 Revenue Mandals covering 824 revenue villages. The mandals covered in each revenue division are shown in Table-1. The spatial distribution of mandals covered in each Revenue Divisions is shown in the Figure-1. The satellite imagery of the district is shown in Figure-2.

1.2 Physiography

Physiographically, Chittoor District occupied by structural landforms and are predominantly formed as the result of geological structures such as plateau quartzite, strike and homo-clinal ridges, structural and intra-mountain valleys, etc.

1.2.1 Relief

The slope distribution clearly shows that a portion of the district has plain terrain with intense agriculture area and the other portion of the district has rocky and hilly terrain covered with forest. The slope varies from gently sloping to very steep slopes throughout the district (Figure-3). The West part and North-West part of the district dominated by uplands, adjoined to pediplains. It is also composed of ridge and valley topography of Nallamalai ranges. Chittoor district essentially composed of isolated low-relief hills formed mainly due to erosion. The West part of the district has mainly nearly level (0-1%) to gently sloping (3-5%) in nature. The North-East part of the district has mainly moderately steep to steep sloping (15-35%). The total area of Chittoor district is undulating terrain.

1.2.2 Climate & Rainfall

1.2.2.1. Climate:

The temperature in the western part of the district is relatively lower than the eastern part of the Chittoor district. Due to the higher altitude of the western part compared to the eastern part of the district. During the summer, the temperature touches 44°C in the eastern part, whereas the western part ranges between 36°C to 38°C. Similarly the winter temperatures in the western parts are relatively low ranging between 12°C and 14°C and in eastern parts it is 16°C to 18°C. Most of a district has a tropical wet and dry climate, with some north-western parts having hot semi-arid climate. The Automatic Weather Stations (AWS) locations in the district are shown in Figure-4.

1.2.2.2. Rainfall:

The average annual rainfall of the district is 913 mm, of which 453 mm falls in South-West (June-September) monsoon and 428 mm for the North- East (October-December) monsoon. The mean minimum and maximum temperatures recorded in the district are 17.5° C in January and 41.5° C in May, respectively. The average rainfall for the last 25 years is used for the analysis. The average annual rainfall is shown in Figure-5 and the details are given in Table-2.

1.2.3 Drainage

There are no major rivers in the district. Most of the rivers are ephemeral carrying large quantities of water immediately after precipitation. The drainage is generally sub-articulate to sub-parallel following straight courses. The important drainage basins are the Bahuda, Pincha, Swarnamukhi, Palar, Ponnai and Araniyar. The Bahuda and Pincha rivers flow towards the North-East direction. The Palar, Ponnair, Araniyar and Nagari rivers flow towards the South-East direction.

1.3 Population and Literacy

1.3.1. Population:

Chittoor district has a population of 18,72,95 (as per 2011 census), of which male and female are 9,39,538 and 9,33,413 respectively. Amongst all the mandals the Chittoor Mandal has highest population of 2,12,816 and Palasamudram has the least population of 23,657. The total scheduled caste (SC) population in the district is 3,94,327 of which, male and female are 1,96,864 and 1,97,463 & scheduled tribe (ST) population is 51,574 of which, male and female are 26,003 and 25571 respectively. The mandal wise population and literacy are shown in Table-3 and 4 respectively. Mandal wise spatial distribution of the population is shown in Figure-6.

1.3.2. Literacy:

Literacy in its broadest sentence describes “particular ways of thinking about and doing reading and writing” with the purpose of understanding or expressing thoughts or ideas in written form in some specific context of use. Table: 3 show the Mandal wise Literacy of Chittoor district.

1.3.3. Details of the Occupational Health issues in the District (Last five-year data of number of patients of Silicosis): No cases were reported during the last 5 years due to mining activity.

1.4 Land Utilization Pattern

1.4.1 Land Use / Land Cover

The Land Use / Land Cover (LULC) pattern of any region is an outcome of various physical and cultural factors and their utilization by man in time and space. Land use refers to the type of utilization to which man has put the land. It also refers to the evaluation of the land with respect to various natural characteristics. But land cover describes the vegetal attributes of the land. Land use/land cover data is essential for planners, decision-makers and those concerned with land resources management. For the proper understanding of the influence of the various human-induced land-use practices with regard to environmental change, it is essential to help simulate the land-use changes. Remote sensing technology is considered the most effective as it provides timely and authentic information about the spatial distribution of land use/land cover, while the Geographical Information System (GIS) provides a flexible digital environment for collecting, storing, visualizing, and analyzing the spatial data. Remote sensing as a vital tool helps in rapid assessment and monitoring of a natural resource. When combined with GIS, it makes it possible to map land use/cover phenomena in detail for further planning, development, and decision-making, which is essential for meeting the increasing demands and welfare of the ever-growing population.

1.4.2 Spatial Distribution of Land Use / Land Cover

The major common land use categories such as built-up (163.80 sq. km), agriculture (3652.45 sq. km), forest (1866.23 sq. km), wastelands (781.69 sq. km), and water bodies (269.06 sq. km) were identified and mapped using on-screen interpretation techniques. The study area has been classified into 33 level-III land use/land cover classes. The predominant category is agricultural land followed by forest. The spatial distribution of land use/land cover map of the Chittoor district is presented in Figure-7 and the area statistics are shown in Table-5.

1.4.2.1. Built-up

These are the areas where people live and are supported by infrastructure such as buildings, roads, and other modes of transportation, as well as utilities connected to water, vegetation, and open spaces. It consists of built-up (Compact and Sparse), Vegetated / Open Area, Rural, Industrial, and Mining/Quarry. It occupies an area of 166.76 sq. km, which is about 2.43% of the total geographical area of the district. The district headquarters, some mandal headquarters, industrial areas and rural settlement areas based on size and population have been mapped under the built-up category. Many vacant lands with layouts and fencing are coming up on the outskirts of the major towns for real estate development.

1.4.2.2. Built-up - Compact (Continuous)

Most of the land is covered by buildings, roads, and artificially surfaced areas and covers almost all the ground. The built-up-compact class is assigned where impermeable surfaces such as the transportation network and urban structures take up more than 80% of the surface area. This category occupied 15.03 sq. km, which are found in urban areas.

1.4.2.3. Built-up - Sparse (Discontinuous)

Most of the land is covered by structures like buildings, roads, and artificially surfaced areas associated with vegetated areas and bare soil, which occupy discontinuous but significant surfaces. Between 30 to 80 % of the total surface should be impermeable. Scattered blocks of residential flats, hamlets, and small villages are delineated under this category. It contributes an area of 6.36 sq. km, which is found in peri-urban areas.

1.4.2.4. Vegetated / Open Area

These are vegetated areas within the urban agglomeration (situated within or in contact with urban areas). Vegetation cover of trees, shrubs, and herbs cover the surface area, and it has been delineated. Open areas used as Parks, sport and leisure facilities, camping grounds, sports grounds, leisure parks, golf courses, racecourses, including formal parks etc are considered in this category. This category occupies an area of 0.67 sq. km.

1.4.2.5 Built-up – Rural

These are the lands used for human settlement of size comparatively less than the urban settlements of which more than 80% of the people are involved in the primary activity of agriculture and associated with non-commercial and allied classes are identified as a built-up (rural) category. The rural built-up area is the predominant category among the built-up category and is spread over the district. It contributed an area of 79.42 sq. km.

1.4.2.6. Industrial

Non-linear impervious surfaces are included in this class which is related to trade, manufacturing, distribution, and commerce. These are areas where human activity is observed in the form of manufacturing along with other supporting establishments for maintenance. The industrial area occupies an area of 11.71 sq. km, which is observed in and around towns.

1.4.2.7. Industrial area - Ash / Cooling Pond

These are the portions of an industry that are used for the temporary storage of ash, contaminated soil, rubble, cooling of hot water, or tailing pond associated with the industry. The areas where industrial waste is permanently kept, categorized as other waste which is delineated under this category. A stockpile of a storage dump of industrial raw material or slag/effluents or waste material or quarried/mixed debris from the earth's surface is considered under this category. It is observed that this category is found around the major industrial areas and contributes very little area, which is about 0.10 sq. km.

1.4.2.8. Quarry

These are manifestations of surface mining operations wherein small-scale excavation of the land surface of sand, gravel, granite, quartzite quarries, etc., are taking place. They are mostly characterized by their nearness to urban areas. It contributes an area of about 53.48 sq. km and it occupies 0.78% of the total surfaced area.

1.4.2.9. Agricultural Land

Agriculture land is primarily used for the production of food, fiber, and other commercial and horticultural crops. It includes land under crops, namely cropland, fallow land, agricultural plantations, and aquaculture. Agriculture is the main source of income for the district's economy and is found as the major category covering 3718.41 sq. km (54.24%) during the period. It is also found that the double-cropped area is about 32.96% of the district total.

1.4.2.10. Kharif Crop

The agricultural area cultivated between June/July to September/ October, coinciding with the southwest monsoon season is considered a Kharif crop. It is associated with rain-fed crops under dry land farming with limited or no irrigation and areas of rain-fed paddy and other dry crops. The second largest agricultural category is kharif cropland, also known as rain-fed agriculture, which covers an area of 825.78 sq. km (12.05%). The main crops grown during kharif are rice, sugarcane, jowar, maize, red gram, cotton, castor, etc.

1.4.2.11. Rabi Crop

These areas are cultivated between November/December to February/March. It is associated with areas under assured irrigation irrespective of the source of irrigation. However, Rabi-cropped areas also occur in rain-fed regions, under residual soil moisture conditions especially in black soil areas with high rainfall during the Kharif season. Mainly irrigated crops like rice, sugarcane, and chillies are grown during the Rabi season by utilizing canals, tanks, and groundwater resources. In some places, lift irrigation is also practiced in the district. Rabi cropland occupied an area of 34.72 sq. km (0.51%) during the year 2015-16.

1.4.2.12. Zaid Crop

These are the areas that are cropped during summer (April – May) which are mostly associated with irrigated areas with fertile soils, confined to plains/delta areas. Summer crops grown from April to June are mapped under Zaid cropland and occupy an area of 3.92 sq. km during the study period.

1.4.2.13. Cropped in two seasons

These are the areas that are cropped during two cropping seasons that are often seen associated with irrigated areas. Three combinations are possible in this category viz., - Kharif + Rabi, Kharif + Zaid, and Rabi + Zaid. Areas under crop during any two seasons are mapped under cropped in 2 seasons category and it occupies an area of 2259.59 sq. km (32.96%). These are found in assuring irrigation facilities from canals, tanks, and groundwater.

1.4.2.14. Cropped in more than two seasons

These are the areas that are cropped in more than two cropping seasons. It includes triple-cropped areas (Kharif, Rabi, and Zaid), and areas under multiple cropping. Long-duration crops like sugarcane, cotton, banana, and pineapple are considered under this category. This category occupies an area of 2.02 sq. km (0.03%) of the total geographical area of the district.

1.4.2.15. Fallow land

The agricultural land which is being used for cultivation, but is temporarily allowed to rest or un-cropped for one or more seasons, but not less than a year, and for not more than five years is referred to as fallow land. The fallow land occupies an area of 523.90 sq. km and these are the areas devoid of crops during both the cropping seasons for various reasons.

1.4.2.16. Agricultural Plantation

These are the areas under agricultural tree crops planted adopting agricultural management techniques. These also include the areas of land use systems and practices wherein the cultivation of herbs, shrubs, and vegetable crops are deliberately integrated with crops mostly in irrigated conditions for ecological and economic reasons. These areas are separable from cropland, especially with the data acquired during the Rabi/Zaid season. Plantations appear in dark-red to red tones of different sizes with regular and sharp edges indicating the presence of a fence around it. Plantations like mango, cashew, eucalyptus, teak, etc are grown throughout the district. This category occupies an area of 68.49 sq. km or 1% of the total geographical area of the district.

1.4.2.17. Forest

The term forest is used to refer to land with a tree canopy cover of more than 30 percent and an area of more than 0.5 ha. Forest is determined both by the presence of trees and the absence of other predominant land uses within the notified forest boundaries. The trees should be able to reach a minimum height of 5 m within the notified forest boundaries. The forest area occupies an area of 1900.04 sq. km (27.72%) and is found in the north, northeast, south, and central parts of the district where several forest species grow. The important species are teak, nalla maddi, rosewood, devadari, sanders, etc.

1.4.2.18. Deciduous (Dry/Moist/Thorn)-Dense

This category is predominantly composed of species, which shed their leaves once a year, especially during summer. These are mostly broad-leaved tropical forests with a tendency to shed their leaves annually. This category includes all the areas where the canopy cover/density is more than 40 % and contributed 646.32 sq. km in the district.

1.4.2.19. Deciduous (Dry/Moist/Thorn)-Open

This category is predominantly composed of species, which shed their leaves once a year, especially during summer. These are mostly broad-leaved tropical forests with a tendency to shed their leaves annually. This category includes all the forest areas where the canopy cover/density ranges between 10 - 40 percent. In addition to timber, these forests also contain a large variety of fauna like tigers, leopards, wolves, bears, etc. An area of 744.20 sq. km (10.86%) is attributed to this category.

1.4.2.20. Forest Plantation

These are the areas of tree species of forestry importance, raised and managed especially in the notified forest areas. Most of these are located in uplands, coastal areas within notified areas. Many of these can be identified based on the sharp boundaries exhibited by them. Forest plantations, mainly teak, bamboo, casuarinas, etc have been delineated by an area of 2.12 sq. km during the period.

1.4.2.21. Scrub Forest

These are the forest areas that are generally seen on the fringes of dense forest cover and settlements, where there is biotic and abiotic interference. Most times they are located closer to habitations. Forest blanks, which are the openings amidst forest areas, devoid of tree cover, observed as openings of assorted sizes and shapes as manifested in the imagery are also included in this category. Most of the scrub forests are found in fringe areas of reserved forests and account for 496.89 sq. km (7.25%), which are generally prone to the conversion of forest plantations and other development activities within the notified forest.

1.4.2.22. Tree Clad Area-Dense

Areas with tree cover lie outside the notified forest area with a woody perennial plant with a single, well-defined stem carrying a more-or-less-defined crown and being at least 3 m tall. Plants are essentially herbaceous but with a woody appearance (e.g. Bamboos and Ferns) and are also classified as trees if the height is more than 5 m and as shrubs, if the height is less than 5 m. This category includes all the areas where the canopy cover/density is more than 40%. The dense tree-clad area contributes an area of 9.27 sq. km, which is found along with forest areas.

1.4.2.23. Tree Clad Area-Open

Areas with tree cover lying outside the notified forest area with a woody perennial plant with a single, well-defined stem carrying a more-or-less-defined crown and being at least 3 m tall. Plants are essentially herbaceous but with a woody appearance (e.g. Bamboos and ferns) and are also classified as trees if the height is more than 5 m and as shrubs, if the height is less than 5 m. This category includes all the forest areas where the canopy cover/density ranges between 10 - 40 percent. The tree-clad open category has been mapped with an area of 1.05 sq. km.

1.4.2.24. Wastelands

Wasteland is described as degraded land which can be brought under vegetative cover with reasonable effort and which is currently underutilized and land which is deteriorating due to lack of appropriate water and soil management or on account of natural causes. Wastelands can result from inherent/imposed disabilities such as location, environment, chemical and physical properties of the soil, or financial or management constraints. The area under the wasteland category was mapped at 795.87 sq. km (11.61%) during the study, which consists of further subcategories of salt-affected land, gullied land, dense scrub, open scrub, riverine land and barren rocky/stony waste.

1.4.2.25. Salt-affected land

These lands contain an excessive concentration of salts (soluble salts or exchangeable saline or both). Salinization can result from improper management of canal irrigation water, resulting in the rise of the water table and consequent accumulation of salts in the root zone in arid, semi-arid, and sub-humid (dry) conditions, and they also become saline when soils have developed salt-containing parent materials or have saline groundwater. The salt-affected lands accounted for 13.33 sq. km in the district.

1.4.2.26. Gullied land

Gullies are formed as a result of localized surface run-off affecting the unconsolidated material resulting in the formation of perceptible channels causing the undulating terrain. Gullies develop from rills which are tiny water channels a few centimeters deep, formed as a resultant impact of heavy rainfall and the wearing action of runoff generated there from. They are commonly found on sloping lands, developed as a result of concentrated runoff. Further classification of this category is possible based on the depth, width, bed slope, frequency and morphology of the bed material of the ravines. They appear in light yellow to bluish-green depending on the surface moisture and depth of erosion. They vary in size and shape with irregular broken network patterns. The gullied lands are mapped in the areas of pediment and the foothill zones, accounting for 10.45 sq. km (0.15%).

1.4.2.27. Dense scrub

The scrub is usually confined to topographically elevated areas, on the hill slopes generally surrounded by agricultural lands. These areas possess shallow and skeletal soils, at times chemically degraded, extremes of slopes, severely eroded, and lands subjected to excessive aridity with scrubs dominating the landscape. It is found with varying sizes of small to large areas having a contiguous or dispersed pattern. The dense scrub areas are identified on the hills with moderate slopes. About 456 sq. km of the area was mapped during the period.

1.4.2.28. Open scrub

This category has a similar description as mentioned in the dense scrub except that they possess sparse vegetation or are devoid of scrub and have a thin soil cover. The open scrub areas are found at the foothills and moderate to gentle slopping areas, surrounded by agricultural lands. The area mapped under this category is about 201sq. km.

1.4.2.29. Riverine sand

Riverine sands are those that are seen as accumulations in the flood plain as sheets which are the resultant phenomena of river flooding. The sandy areas occurring within or in continuity to the river course are to be excluded from this category. The riverine sands are mapped at 0.14 sq. km only along the rivers.

1.4.2.30. Barren Rocky/Stony waste

The barren rock exposures are especially confined to hilly terrain with down slopes with rock outcrops, stony waste, and fragments. Barren rocky areas have been observed as rocky outcrops in the forest and scrubland. It is found that most of the barren rocky areas are being quarried for various construction activities in the district. The area under this category is 114.53 sq. km and it occupies 1.67 % of the district.

1.4.2.31. Water Bodies

This category comprises areas with surface water, either impounded in the form of ponds, lakes, and reservoirs or flowing as streams, rivers, canals, etc are delineated. These are seen clearly in the satellite image in blue to dark blue or cyan color depending on the depth of water. This category comprises rivers, streams, canals, lakes, ponds, reservoirs, and tanks. The water bodies which include all the sub-categories are about 273.91 sq. km (4%).

1.4.2.32. River/Stream-Perennial

Rivers/streams are the natural course of water flowing on the land surface along a definite channel/slope regularly or intermittently towards a sea in most cases or a lake or an inland basin in desert areas or a marsh or another river. The riversstreams that flow continuously throughout the year are considered as perennial. It contributes an area of 0.08 sq. km.

1.4.2.33. River/Stream-Non-Perennial

When the water covers the surface for less than nine months each year, it is considered non-perennial. This also includes the dry part of the river generally characterized by the presence of sand or exposed rocks. It is found that most of the riversstreams like Peddavanka, Godduvanka, etc., are under the non-perennial category and contribute an area of 35.67 sq. km.

1.4.2.34. Canal/Drain

Canals and drains are artificial watercourses constructed for irrigation, navigation or to drain out excess water from agricultural lands. It contributes an area of 9.90 sq. km.

1.4.2.35. Reservoir/Tanks-Permanent

The reservoir is an artificial lake created by the construction of a dam across the river specifically for hydel power generation, irrigation, and water supply for domestic/ industrial needs, flood control, either singly or in combination. Tanks are small lakes of impounded waterways constructed on land surfaces for irrigation. They are associated with croplands, lowlands, and reservoirs surrounded by hills without vegetation. This includes all reservoirs/tanks with water spread seen at least during one season in a year is considered under the permanent category. The reservoir/tanks-permanent category was delineated by an area of 30.16 sq. km. These are one of the main sources of irrigation and are spread throughout the district.

1.4.2.36. Reservoir/Tanks-Seasonal

Dry reservoirs/tanks are those which do not have water spread throughout the year and are considered seasonal. During the mapping period, where the water spread is not found in the three seasons, those areas are mapped in this category. It is found that many of the tanks fall under the seasonal category with an area of 198.07 sq. km.

1.4.2.37. Lakes/Ponds-Seasonal

Lakes/ponds are those that retain water in them either for one season or throughout the year and are usually not subject to extreme fluctuation in water level. Ponds are a body of water limited in size, either natural or artificial, regular in shape, smaller in size than a lake, and generally located near settlements. These accounted for an area of 0.04 sq. km only.

1.4.3 Forest Cover Distribution

The forest cover maps were prepared based on the interpretation of multi-source topographical maps and satellite data. The term forest is used to refer to land with a tree canopy cover of more than 10 percent and an area of more than 0.5 ha. Forest is determined both by the presence of trees and the absence of other predominant land uses within the notified forest boundaries. The trees should be able to reach a minimum height of 5 m within the notified forest boundaries. These forest areas are coming under the Eastern Ghats, which is a phyto-geographical region of rugged, hilly terrain running almost parallel to the east coast. The forest cover is distributed with an area of 1900.04 sq. km, which is about 27.72% of the district area. It is found that the region is reserved for the biosphere and the Kaundinya elephant sanctuary is located in Palamner - Kuppam forest ranges. The spatial distribution of forest cover and its statistics are presented in Figure-8 and Table-6. As per the Forest Department, Government of Andhra Pradesh the Forest boundary map is presented in Figure-9 and the wildlife sanctuary map is presented in Figure-9A.

1.4.4 Agricultural Resources in Chittoor District

Over the past two decades, APSAC has effectively employed remote sensing technology in agriculture, encompassing both spatial and temporal dimensions across various projects. The continuous evolution of satellite remote sensing technology has facilitated systematic monitoring of crop conditions and vigor across extensive regions. Within the realm of spectral vegetation indices derived from remote sensing data, the Normalized Difference Vegetation Index (NDVI) stands out as the most widely utilized for operational drought assessment. Its popularity stems from its straightforward calculation, ease of interpretation, and the capacity to mitigate the impacts of atmospheric conditions, illumination geometry, and other variables.

APSAC conducted in-season crop condition assessments at the Mandal level in Andhra Pradesh. This initiative aimed to provide administrators and planners with crucial insights for strategic decision-making regarding drought management, import-export policies, and trade negotiations. The NDVI is calculated using the formula $(\text{NIR}-\text{Red})/(\text{NIR}+\text{Red})$, where NIR and Red represent the reflectance in the visible and near-infrared channels, respectively. Water, clouds, and snow exhibit higher reflectance in the visible region, causing NDVI to assume negative values for these features. Bare soil and rocks, with similar reflectance in both visible and near-infrared regions, yield index values close to zero. NDVI values for vegetation typically range from 0.2 to 0.6, with higher values associated with greater green leaf area and biomass. The Shortwave Infrared (SWIR) band is sensitive to soil and crop canopy moisture. Early in the cropping season, when soil background dominates, SWIR is sensitive to top 12 cm soil moisture. As crop growth progresses, SWIR becomes sensitive to leaf moisture content, providing surface wetness information.

The Normalized Difference Wetness Index (NDWI), computed using SWIR data, complements NDVI for drought assessment, especially in the early cropping season. NDWI is derived as follows: $\text{NDWI}=(\text{NIR}-\text{SWIR})/(\text{NIR}+\text{SWIR})$, where NIR and SWIR represent reflected radiation in the Near-Infrared and Shortwave Infrared channels. Higher NDWI values indicate increased surface wetness.

For satellite-based crop condition anomalies indicating agricultural drought, the Vegetation Condition Index (VCI) of both NDVI and NDWI can be computed. When combining VCI values of NDVI and NDWI, the minimum of the two can be considered. For instance, if at least one is categorized as severe, the overall category is considered severe. If at least one is moderate, the overall category is taken as moderate. The vegetation conditions and corresponding ranges are detailed in Table-7.

Table 7 Vegetation condition and range in percentage

VCI range (%)	Vegetation	Description
60-100	Normal	Crop condition is Normal
40-60	Moderate	Crop condition is Moderate
0-40	Severe	Crop condition is Severe

1.4.4.1 Kharif Crop Condition Assessment

Andhra Pradesh Space Applications Centre (APSAC) conducted a crop condition assessment in Chittoor district during Kharif 2022-23 utilizing MODIS (Moderate Resolution Imaging Spectro-radiometer) satellite data. The assessment revealed that out of the total mandals in the district, 17 were categorized as having a normal crop condition, 10 were classified as moderate, and 4 were identified as severe. Notably, urban and forest cover mandals were excluded from the vegetation condition assessment. This comprehensive evaluation provides valuable insights into the agricultural landscape of Chittoor district, aiding in targeted interventions and resource allocation to mitigate the impacts of varying crop conditions.

1.4.4.2 Rabi Crop Condition Assessment

During Rabi 2022-23, the VCI assessment identified 28 mandals with normal crop conditions, 1 mandal categorized as moderate, and 02 mandals in the severe category.

Notably, mandals predominantly covered by urban or forest areas were excluded from the vegetation condition assessment. This evaluation provides valuable insights into the agricultural status of Chittoor district during the Rabi season, facilitating informed decision-making and resource allocation to support agricultural sustainability and productivity.

1.4.5 Soil Resources of the Chittoor District

In Chittoor district of Andhra Pradesh, various soil types characterize its landscape. Shallow gravelly red soils cover a significant area of 1597.15 sq. km, comprising 23.77% of the district's soil composition. Following closely are loamy to clayey skeletal deep reddish-brown soils, spanning 1415.61 sq. km (21.07%). Clayey to gravelly clay moderately deep dark brown soils occupy 1397.47 sq. km (20.80%), while loamy to gravelly clay deep dark reddish-brown soils cover 1099.77 sq. km (16.37%). Moderately deep calcareous black soils extend over 576.75 sq. km (8.58%), and shallow loamy to gravelly clay red soils encompass 535.09 sq. km (7.96%). This distribution is depicted in the soil resource map (Figure-10) and summarized in Table-8, providing valuable insights into the diverse soil landscape within the district.

1.4.6 Salt-affected land:

The term “salt-affected soil/land” refers to the soils in which salt interfere with normal plant growth. Salt-affected soils can be divided into saline, saline-sodic and sodic, depending on salt amounts, type of salts, the amount of sodium present, and soil alkalinity. (Reference FAO Soils Portal).

These lands contain an excessive concentration of salts (soluble salts or exchangeable saline or both). Salinization can result from improper management of canal irrigation water, resulting in the rise of the water table and consequent accumulation of salts in the root zone in arid, semi-arid, and sub-humid (dry) conditions and ingress of seawater in coastal regions and/or use of high-salt containing groundwater. They also become saline when soils have developed salt-containing parent materials or have saline groundwater. Coastal saline soils may be with or without ingress or inundation by seawater. The salt-affected soil/ land area in the Chittoor district is 2,693 hectares. Figure-11 illustrates the spatial distribution of salt affected soil in Chittoor district.

1.4.7 Horticulture

Horticulture encompasses both science and art, focusing on the cultivation, utilization, and enhancement of various crops such as fruits, vegetables, spices, ornamental plants, medicinal herbs, and more. It involves a broad spectrum of activities including plant conservation, landscape restoration, garden design, construction, maintenance, and arboriculture. In Chittoor district, Mango stands out as the primary horticulture crop, covering an extensive area of 2612.93 hectares, followed by Mulberry (88.91 ha), Coconut (22.37 ha), Pomegranate (21.32 ha), Papaya (12.10 ha), and Guava (8.96 ha). The cumulative area dedicated to horticulture fruit crops totals 2785.22 hectares, as detailed in Table-9. This data underscores the significance of mango cultivation while highlighting the diversity of horticultural practices within the district.

1.5 Ground Water Prospects in the District:

More than 90% of the district's area is underlain by crystalline formations, with the remaining area comprising semi-consolidated formations. The degree and depth of weathering vary from place to place within the crystalline formations, affecting the potentiality of shallow aquifers. Groundwater occurs under unconfined conditions in weathered portions, while semi-confined to confine conditions are found in fractures and joints at deeper depths. Groundwater in weathered formations is typically accessed through dug wells. For irrigation purposes, these dug wells are often circular or rectangular, with dimensions ranging from 30 to 60 square meters. Domestic wells are typically circular and smaller in size. The depth of these wells usually does not exceed 10 meters. The average discharge of energized wells ranges from 18 to 30 cubic meters per day. However, during the monsoon period, the discharge can vary from 80 to 200 cubic meters per day, and during the summer, it ranges from 10 to 50 cubic meters per day.

To enhance the yield of dug wells, inclined/vertical bores of 25 mm diameter were drilled to a length of approximately 10 m. Deeper aquifers are developed through the construction of shallow/deep bore wells. These borewells are typically drilled to a depth of 120 m with a diameter of 162 mm. However, encountering fractures beyond 70 m is uncommon, although in a few locations, potential aquifers were found beyond 130 m, as observed during the exploration program conducted by the Central Ground Water Board (CGWB). Bore-well yields generally range from 0.1 to 5.0 liters per second.

The Nagari Quartzites are primarily found in uplands and hilly areas, often covered by forests. These formations are typically massive, compact, and possess minimal groundwater potential. Consequently, groundwater development is limited, and there are few habitations in these areas. Alluvium, on the other hand, is predominantly found along river banks and stream courses, exhibiting varying widths and depths. Groundwater development in this formation is primarily achieved through filter points and dug wells. Good yields typically range from 3 to 10 liters per second, with drawdown's of 2 to 6 meters. They can sustain pumping for 6 to 8 hours per day, with rapid recovery of water levels. The groundwater prospective map of the Chittoor district is depicted in Figure-12.

1.6 Infrastructure

1.6.1 Transport Network

The district is well connected with surrounding States such as Tamil Nadu and Karnataka with rail and road network (Figure-13). The transport network in the district is as given below.

1.6.1.1. Rail Network: The Chittoor district has several railway stations serving different parts of the district. It has an extensive rail network of 121.6km length and 15 no.of railway stations; among these there are 7 important railway stations (i.e. Chittoor, Ekambarakuppam, Gudupalli, Kuppam, Mulanur, Nagari and Putalapattu) remaining 8 stations are minor stations (i.e. BommaSamudram, Mangalampeta, Peyanapalli, Pulicherla, Ramapuram, Siddampalli, Vallivedu and Venkatanarasimharajuvaripeta) in the district.

The Chittoor District is served by several railway lines that connect it to different parts of the country. Here are the major railway lines that are passes through or have stations in the District.

Broad Gauge double line network connecting Mumbai and Chennai passes through the Eastern part of the district connecting Renigunta Junction to Arakonam junction from north to south. A broad gauge single line connects Chennai to the Howrah line at Gudur junction. The broad gauge line connecting the stations such as Srikalahasti – Renigunta – Tirupati - Pakala Junction – Puthalapattu – Chittoor – Siddampalle – Peyanapalli – Ramapuram – Bommasamudram - Katpadi Junction. One more broad gauge single line passes through the district from East - West connecting at Pakala Junction covering the stations such as Damalcheruvu-Vallivedu- Mangalampeta-Pulicherla-Madanapalle Road- Dharmavaram Junction.

1.6.1.2. Road Network: Chittoor District has an extensive road network of 13,602Km with various types of roads such as, National Highways, State Highways, District Roads and Other Roads. The district has a total Length of 325 Km of National Highways, The district is well-served by state highways, which connect major towns and cities within the Chittoor district, as well as neighbouring districts with a length of 457Km, has an extensive network of district roads, connects towns, villages, and rural areas. These roads provide access to remote areas and serve as vital links for transportation with a road length of 2143 Km of Major District Roads &the district ensures connectivity to remote rural areas as well which includes other District roads and Panchayat Raj roads, Village roads, cart track, Foot Path are also available (Figure-13).

Chittoor district is traversed by Five National Highways namely:

NH-40: Connecting Chennai-Gudipala-Chittoor- Puthalapattu-Pileru-Hyderabad-Nagpur from South to North.

NH-69: Connecting Chittoor – Bangarupalem-Palamaneru-Mulabagal- Bengaluru.

NH71: Connecting Naidupet- Srikalahasti- Yerpedu- Renugunta-Tirupati Chinnagottigallu – Rompicherla – Pileru – Vayalpadu-Madanapalle – Kadiri.

NH-716: Connecting- Renigunta-Nagari-Chennai.

NH42: Connecting – Kadiri – Punganur – Peddapanjani – Gannavaram

– Palamaner – Baireddipalle-Venkatigirikota-Kuppam – Krishnagiri.

In addition Panchayat Raj roads are well connected to all the 31 Mandal headquarters of the district.

1.6.1.3. Air-Connectivity: There is no airport in this district, and Kuppam domestic airport is proposed for development, International airport is situated at Renigunta which is located in Tirupati district, and distance from this airport to Chittoor is about 80 km.

1.6.2 Irrigation

1.6.2.1. Major and Medium Irrigation Projects in Chittoor district:

Irrigation has assumed an increasing significance in agriculture in the context of new technology, where high-yielding varieties and multiple cropping are being practiced. The main reasons for low yields are inadequate rainfall, uneven and uncertain rains during the period of crop growth. It is generally found that the introduction of irrigation is associated with changes in the cropping pattern. The shift from a traditional cropping pattern to the most advantageous cropping pattern is possible only in the presence of irrigation facilities. The new agricultural technology is highly based on sufficient moisture conditions. Thus, the development of irrigation is crucial for increasing agricultural production. The irrigation projects are classified as major, medium, and minor irrigation projects. The Major and Medium projects are shown in Table-10 and shown in Figure-14.

1.6.2.1.1. Major Irrigation Projects:

In Chittoor district there are two major irrigation projects (ongoing) are Ananta Venkata Reddy Handri Neeva Sujala Sravanthi (HNSS) and Krishna Devaraya Galeru Nagari Sujala Sravanthi (GNSS). An ayacut details of HNSS covered in the district was 58,550 Ac and GNSS 10,000 Ac. The ayacut statistics assembly constituencies wise in Chittoor district are Kuppam 6,300 Ac, Punganur 17,800 Ac, Chittoor 6,200 Ac, Puthalapattu 20,150 Ac and Palamaneru 8,100 Ac under HNSS project, and also Nagari assembly constituency covered 10,000 Ac under GNSS (Adivikotturu Reservoir).

1.6.2.1.2. Medium Irrigation Projects:

The Krishnapuram reservoir medium irrigation project (completed) covered an ayacut of 6,125 Ac falling in two mandals namely Karvetinagar and Srirangarajapuram.

1.6.2.2. Tank Information System

As per the information of Water Resources Departmental portal Andhra Pradesh Water Resources Information & Management System (APWRIMS) and portal URL:<https://apwrims.ap.gov.in/> in Chittoor district has 4,121 minor irrigation tanks. The Designed Storage Capacity of Chittoor district 15,133.73 mcft and Current Storage Capacity is 8,924.23 mcft. The mandal wise MI tanks details of Chittoor district are shown in Table-11 and shown in Figure-15

1.6.3 Eco-sensitive areas and Important places

Chittoor district is known for its rich history, cultural heritage, and natural beauty. It has several historical monuments, temples, and scenic spots that attract tourists. Some of the popular tourist attractions in the district include Kangundi Fort, Kanipakam, Kaundinya Wildlife Sanctuary and Kaigal Waterfalls. Visitors can immerse themselves in the rich cultural heritage, natural beauty, and spiritual ambiance of the district. Some of the important tourist places in Chittoor district are shown in the Figure-16

1.6.3.1. Kangundi Fort:

The historical place called Kangundi fort is 11 Km away from Kuppam, which has a fort, where from the Zamindars ruled the area. They were known as Kangundi Zamindars. Kangundi Fort is 120 Km south-west of Chittoor and it is about 16 Km from Kuppam town.

1.6.3.2. Kanipakam:

Kanipakam is a small mini town in Irala mandal, located in the Chittoor District of the Indian State of Andhra Pradesh. Kanipakam is situated at a distance of 11km away from Chittoor city on Chittoor-Irala road. Kanipakam is a popular Hindu temple of Lord Ganesha called as Kanipakam Vinayaka Temple.

1.6.3.3. Kaundinya Wildlife Sanctuary:

Spread across the Eastern Ghats, Kaundinya Wildlife Sanctuary is home to a variety of flora and fauna. It is particularly known for its population of elephants. The sanctuary offers opportunities for wildlife sighting, bird watching, and nature photography.

1.6.3.4. Kaigal Waterfalls:

It is popularly known as Kaigal falls in reference to the Kaigal village situated about 2.5 km from the waterfalls. It is located at 13.0690°N, 78.5621°E. It has an average elevation of 633 meters (2,079 ft). Locally the falls is called as "Dumukurallu Waterfalls". The Telugu name Dumukurallu waterfalls came into prominence because of its sound resembling the fall of stones from above.

Kaigal waterfalls are located 6 Km away from Baireddipalle. This place is visited by thousands of tourists from Tamilnadu, Karnataka, and Andhra Pradesh.

1.6.4 Places of Religious and Cultural importance

Pre-historic sites, Megaliths, Ancient cities, Forts, and Temples are found in the Chittoor District. A large number of temples were constructed in the district during Pallava, Chola, and Vijayanagar Periods. Among these, the important tables are shown in theTable-12.

1.7 Drainage Pattern

1.7.1 Drainage

There are no major rivers in the district. Most of the rivers are ephemeral carrying large quantities of water immediately after precipitation. The drainage is generally sub - articulate to sub-parallel following straight courses. The important drainage basins are Bahuda, Pincha, Swarnamukhi, Palar, Ponnai and Araniyar. The Bahuda and Pincha rivers flow towards the North-East direction. The Palar, Ponnair, Araniyar and Nagari rivers flow towards the South-East direction. Figure-15 illustrates the drainage system, and the surface water bodies.

1.7.2 Geomorphology of the District:

The district is part of the Mysore plateau and can be divided into three major regions based on elevation above mean sea level (AMSL): areas with elevations between 600-900m, 300-600m, and below 300m AMSL. The western and southwestern parts, including Kuppam, Palamaneru, and Punganuru areas, have altitudes ranging between 600m and 900m AMSL. The central region, encompassing Bangasapalem and Chittoor areas, has elevations ranging from 300m to 600m AMSL. The eastern and southern parts, such as Karvetinagar, have altitudes of less than 300m AMSL. Various geomorphic landforms are observed in the district, including fluvial, denudational, and structural landforms. The pediplain is the major landform covering a significant portion of the district. Other landforms present include hills (denudational, structural, and residual), pediment, valley fills, and floodplain areas. The Geomorphological map of the Chittoor district is depicted in Figure-17.

1.7.3 Landforms of Fluvial origin

In earth science, the term "fluvial" refers to processes and landforms created by the movement of water. Like other surface processes, running water can either erode material from the landscape or deposit layers of sediment. Consequently, resulting landforms are classified as either erosional or depositional. The significant power of running water in shaping various erosional and depositional landforms is well recognized. Although the volume of water in a stream may be relatively small at certain times of the year, the overall quantity moving through the channel is substantial, making it a crucial component of the hydrological cycle. Fluvial dissection of the landscape typically results in valleys, which include channel ways organized into a system known as a drainage network. These drainage networks exhibit various types of quantitative regularity that are valuable for analyzing both fluvial systems and the terrain they dissect (NRSA, 2007).

1.7.3.1. Flood Plain

The surface or strip of relatively smooth land adjacent to a river channel is formed (or in the process of formation) by the current river in its existing regime. During times of high water, this area is inundated when the river overflows its banks. It is composed of alluvium transported by the river during floods and deposited in the slower-moving water beyond the influence of the swiftest current.

1.7.4 Landforms of Structural Origin

Landforms of structural origin are closely related to the structural characteristics of the area. The genesis of most landforms in this category is linked to the underlying geological structure. Structure plays a crucial role in reducing the resistance of the rock, leading to various geomorphic forms. These variations can range from minor to mega-scale features, with the latter having a significant impact on landform genesis. Mapping such mega-scale forms indirectly reveals the structural setup of the area. Structural features on a mega-scale, such as faults and folds, play a vital role in shaping structural landforms depending on their type. The influence of geological structures on landscape development and appearance is substantial. It spans from large features, which dominate the form of entire landscapes, to small features affecting individual landforms and the geomorphic processes acting upon them.

Structural control can be attributed to active structures, whose form directly influences the modern landscape, or ancient structural features, whose influence on the present landscape primarily stems from differential erosion. Below, we explain the important structural landforms that need to be mapped.

1.7.4.1. Antiformal Hills/Valleys: These are uplifted areas, either breached or unbreached, where the structure is directly evident in the topography and possibly reflected in the drainage pattern. In some cases, older rock may be exposed in the core.

1.7.4.2. Basin: This is a broad term referring to a depressed area filled with sediment. It may take the form of an elongated, fault-bordered intermontane basin within an orogenic belt.

1.7.4.3. Cuesta: A cuesta is a hill or ridge characterized by a gentle slope on one side and a steep slope on the other. Specifically, it is an asymmetric ridge with one face (the dip slope) having a long and gentle incline conforming to the dip of the resistant bed or beds that form it. The opposite face (the scarp slope) is steep or even cliff-like, formed by the outcrop of resistant rocks. The formation of the ridge is controlled by the differential erosion of the gently inclined slope.

1.7.4.4. Dome: This is a general term describing any dome-shaped landform or rock mass, such as a smoothly rounded mountain summit capped with rock, resembling the shape of a building dome.

1.7.4.5. Dissected Structural Hills and Valleys: These are hills and valleys that originate from tectonic processes and undergo significant dissection by drainage lines. They can be further classified based on the density of joints and drainage into highly, moderately, and lowly dissected categories. This classification is typically interpreted from planimetric satellite data and is highly subjective.

1.7.4.6. Dyke and Sill Ridges: These are intrusive features that are emplaced within pre-existing fractures or form their own fractures during emplacement due to high fluid pressure. They are discordant bodies, with concordant equivalents known as sills, which mostly take the form of sheet-like plutons.

1.7.4.7. Hogback: A hogback is a long, narrow ridge or series of hills structurally controlled by the presence of homoclinal sedimentary strata that dip steeply ($> 50^\circ$). Hogbacks develop most prominently in sediments with distinct layers of hard and soft materials. Due to their steep dips, hogbacks tend to remain fixed in the landscape and do not retreat like cuestas.

1.7.5 Landforms of denudational origins

Landforms of denudational origin are formed where the denudation process predominates over other processes. Most landforms resulting from this process are a combination of mechanical and chemical weathering. Denudation, the process of material removal by erosion and weathering, directly influences the relief of an area, particularly in reducing relief to the base level. The primary agents involved are water, ice, and wind. Major factors influencing denudation include geology, climate, tectonics, and anthropogenic effects. All rocks and minerals at or near the surface undergo physical and chemical processes. However, the effect of these processes varies due to rocks' varying resistance to change. Consequently, weathering and erosion produce various landforms with distinctive shapes and forms. Weathering is an integral part of the rock cycle, where parent material or rock is disaggregated into smaller fragments, and some minerals are dissolved and removed by water agents. This material removal, known as erosion, is facilitated by running water, wind, glaciers, etc. Weathering provides raw material for sedimentary rocks and soil formation. Below, we explain important denudational landforms that need to be mapped (NRSA, 2016).

1.7.5.1. Inselberg: An inselberg is a prominent, isolated, steep-sided, usually smoothed and rounded residual knob, hill, or small mountain rising abruptly from and surrounded by an extensive and nearly level, lowland erosion surface in a hot, dry region, such as the deserts of Southern Africa or Arabia. Typically bare and rocky, although partly buried by debris derived from and overlapping its slopes, it is characteristic of arid or semi-arid landscapes in a late stage of the erosion cycle.

1.7.5.2. Pediment: A pediment is a broad, flat or gently sloping, rock-floored erosion surface or plain of low relief, typically developed by several agents, including running water, in an arid or semi-arid region. It forms at the base of an abrupt and receding mountain front or plateau escarpment, underlain by bedrock (occasionally by older alluvial deposits). The surface may be bare or partly mantled with a discontinuous veneer of alluvium derived from upland masses and in transit across the surface.

1.7.5.3. Pediment-Inselberg Complex: This complex consists of pediments dotted with numerous small inselbergs, making it difficult to distinguish from the pediments themselves.

1.7.5.4. Pediplain: A pediplain is an extensive, multi-concave, rock-cut erosion surface formed by the coalescence of two or more adjacent pediments and occasional desert domes. It represents the result, known as the "peneplain," of the mature stage of the erosion cycle. Pediplains are further classified based on the thickness of weathering as shallow, moderate, or deep pediplains.

1.7.5.5. Residual Hill: A residual hill is a small remnant hill that has experienced all forms of denudation.

1.7.6 Structural Features of Chittoor District

All linear features are to be interpreted from the image. Cultural features such as roads, railway lines, and high-tension lines are to be excluded. Lineaments from remote sensing data can be identified primarily based on their linear nature, the presence of moisture, alignment of vegetation, alignment of ponds, and straight stream segments. However, interpretation of lineaments should be done in conjunction with other diagnostic criteria such as channel offset, bank erosion, down-cutting of a channel along lineaments, warping, displacement of sediment layers, anabranching of river courses, abrupt changes in river courses, presence of dry channels in active river courses, channel rejuvenation, land subsidence, linear ridges, scarp surfaces, linear alignment of water bodies, and straight channel segments. The structural map of Chittoor District is shown in Figure-18.

1.7.7 Ground Water Quality in the Chittoor District

Laboratory analysis was conducted for groundwater quality physicochemical parameters such as TDS, Cl, NO₃, pH, F, Fe, TA, and SO₄ using standard techniques. Groundwater quality samples were collected for two seasons, namely post-monsoon and pre-monsoon, from December 2017 to June 2019, respectively, from the Rural Water Supply and Sanitation Department (RWS&S). These samples were compared with the Bureau of Indian Standards (BIS) guidelines from 2015 in terms of groundwater quality classifications: desirable, permissible, and non-potable. In the groundwater quality map of the Chittoor district, blue, yellow, and red colors indicate pre-monsoon quality, while + and - symbols indicate post-monsoon quality for desirable, permissible, and non-potable classes, respectively.

The analysis revealed that groundwater is polluted during both pre-monsoon and post-monsoon seasons, with approximately 10% of the area falling under the non-potable category due to high concentrations of nitrate, fluoride, TDS, and total hardness. Additionally, approximately 60% of the area is categorized as potable, while the remaining 30% consists of hills and water bodies throughout the entire district. The occurrence and movement of groundwater in an area are influenced by various factors such as topography, lithology, geological structure, depth of weathering, extent of fractures, drainage pattern, and climate conditions. These factors interact in complex ways to determine groundwater distribution and quality.

Chapter – II Minor Minerals

2.1 Overview of Mining Activity

The following leases exist in the Chittoor office jurisdiction. Mineral Regulatory, the important functioning of this office in these aspects are:-

- i. Achievement of Targets of Mineral Revenue collections is fixed to this office annually.
- ii. Receiving and processing of the Mineral Concession Applications, duly conducting the Technical inspection, Survey and demarcation of the Mineral bearing applied areas.
- iii. Execution and Regulation of the operations of the Mining / Quarry leases in accordance with the Acts and Rules.
- iv. Issuing of dispatch permits, duly collecting the Advance Royalty / Seig. fee from the lease holders on the minerals produced and intend to dispatch from their leased areas through online permit system.
- v. Controlling the illegal mining / quarrying and transportation by conducting the periodical inspections of the mines and quarries and also conducting the surprise vehicular checking and imposing penalties.
- vi. Finalisation of Demand, Collection and Balance statements of the leases on annual basis.

The Chittoor District is one of the chief minor minerals producing districts in the state and endowed with rich & varied minor mineral resources such as colour granite, black granite. Other minor minerals like gravel, ordinary earth, road metal and slate are found and mined in the district.

There are 659 mineral leases in force in Chittoor district. It is estimated that during the year 2022-23, 19499 Cum Black Granite, 17176CuM of Chittoor Color Granite are produced. A total of 1,47,242 CuM of Gravel, 5,27,000 Cum of Ordinary Earth, etc are produced in Chittoor in 2022-23

Gneissic Complex			Banded Tonalite-Trondhjemite Gneiss.

Geologically, the State of Andhra Pradesh forms a part of peninsular India and is one of the most ancient land masses. The geological formations of Andhra Pradesh range from the oldest to the recent.

The Sargur Supracrustals are the oldest rocks in Southern India, mostly occurring as enclaves within migmatitic gneiss. These supracrustals are exposed in the eastern and southern parts of the Nellore schist belt. The lithology of the Sargur formation mainly comprises garnet, staurolite, kyanite schists, BIFs, quartzites, granulites, and amphibolites. The gneissic complex consists of banded tonalite-trondhjemite gneiss, which serves as the basement rock of the study area along with migmatitic gneiss and biotite granite gneiss. TTGs are sodic, quartz-bearing granitic (plutonic) rocks dominated by plagioclase as the most common feldspar, with K-feldspar ranging from subordinate to nearly absent. Dharwarian rocks in Andhra Pradesh are exposed in the western part of the Nellore belt and other areas such as Anantapur, Ramagiri-Penakacherla, Kolar, Kadiri, Gadwal-Narayanpet, Jonnagiri, Veligallu-Peddavuru Schist Belts, and the western part of the Nellore Belt. The lithology mainly comprises metabasalt (pillowed), acid volcanics, minor andesite, dacite, rhyodacite, amphibolites, meta-ultramafics, minor quartzite, calcsilicates, phyllites, intrusives of basic rocks and granites, rare lamprophyres, as well as some pyroclastic rocks and local conglomerates, indicating a hiatus in stratigraphy.

Rocks from the Middle Proterozoic to late Archaean are exposed in the Eastern Ghats Mobile Belt, exhibiting extremely high-grade metamorphism up to granulite facies. These rocks predominantly include khondalites and charnockites. The metamorphic facies of the Eastern Ghats rocks extend up to granulite facies, featuring charnockite with megacrystic K-feldspar, two pyroxene granulite/amphibolite, calc-silicate/granulite, garnet-sillimanite-quartz-graphite gneiss (biotite-K-feldspar), and quartzite (garnet, sillimanite).

The Cuddapah Basin, a part of the Dharwar Craton, is the second largest purana basin of Peninsular India, marking the profound unconformity Eparchaen unconformity in early literature. It exposes rocks from the late Proterozoic to upper Proterozoic, divided into four groups: Nallamalai, Chitravathi, Papaghni, and Kurnool. Papaghni comprises dolomite and limestones, Chitravathi comprises shale, dolomite, and quartzites, Nallamalai comprises shale, quartzites, and arkosic sandstones, and Kurnool comprises shales, quartzites, and limestones. The Cuddapah Basin is characterized by a rhythmic pattern of quartzite-shale-carbonate cycles, with reported occurrences of uraniferous limestone. Major exposures of purana rock formations are found in Prakasam, Kurnool, Cuddapah, Chittoor, and Nellore. Deccan Traps are found in the East and West Godavari districts, with exposures near Rajahmundry. Tertiary formations are found in East and West Godavari and Visakhapatnam districts, while Quaternary sediments occur as thick blankets of alluvium in river valleys, deltas, and along the East coast.

The district is underlain by formations of Archean, Proterozoic, Jurassic, Cretaceous, Tertiary, and Quaternary ages. The oldest rocks in the area belong to the Migmatite Complex, represented by migmatised quartzofelspathic gneiss, and are exposed in the northeastern part of the district. Older metamorphics comprise amphibolites, hornblende-talc-mica schist, fuchsite quartzite, calc-silicate rock, marble, and banded ferruginous quartzite. These older metamorphics occur as enclaves within the Peninsular Gneissic Complex (PGC). The PGC comprises a complex assemblage of gneissic variants and granitic rocks, which occupy a major part of the district. The PGC in the area is represented by biotite-hornblende gneiss, biotite granite, and migmatite.

The Dharwar Supergroup of rocks, represented by quartz-mica schist, amphibolite schist, quartzofelspathic mica schist (Champion gneiss), metabasalt, metadacite, and banded ferruginous quartzite, belongs to various schist belts and occurs as long linear North (N) – South (S) trending belts, overlying the PGC non-conformably. Acid intrusive rocks of Proterozoic Age comprise granite and quartz veins. The granite plutons are exposed as patches and linear bodies in the southwestern and northwestern parts of the district, respectively. The basic dykes include dolerites. Three sets of dolerite dykes trend East (E) – West (W), North (N) - South (S), and Northwest (NW) - Southeast (SE) traversing the district, as shown in Figure-20.

Cuddapah Supergroup

The Kurnool Group sedimentation cycle is evident in two cycles of Quartzite-Limestone-Shale deposition and invariably deposited over the different units of the Cuddapah Supergroup. The Kurnool group is exposed in the Kundair Valley in the west and the Palnadu area in the Northeast and unconformably overlain the basement gneiss of the Papaghni and Chitravathi groups. Thick conglomerate and sandstone form the base of the Banaganapelli formation with a thickness of 10-50m. The Nalgi Limestone represents the basin limestone and is massive to floggy in nature. Buff-white and purple shales constitute the Owk Shales that overlie the Nargi Limestone. The second cycle of deposition is the Paniam Quartzite and Conglomerate. The Koilakuntla Limestone is siliceous with good quality limestone and is overlaid by purple-colored Nandyal Shale. Diamond-bearing Wajrakarur Kimberlite formations occur in quartzites of the Banaganapalli formation. Thus, the cyclic nature of sedimentary structure indicates an overall shallow marine depositional environment. The Geological Survey of India (GSI, 2000) provided a detailed account of the geology/lithology of the district with a map on a 1:250,000 scale and an elaborate legend with a stratigraphic sequence as below.

2.3 Minor Mineral Resources of Chittoor District:

2.3.1. Black Granite: Black granite found in Chittoor is also commercially called G20, a premium variety. Its appearance is of complete black and it is predominantly used for monuments, as well as dimension stones for flooring and wall tiling. Black Granite is available in various villages across the district, including Kotalam, Kanathala cheruvu villages in Yadamarimandal, Kotrakona, Vinjam, Varathulu, Vepanjeri, and Tungundram villages in Gangadhara Nelloremandal, Chintapenta village in Penumurumandal, Veeranamala, RamaKuppam, Bandarlapalle, Gorivimakulapalle, VeduruKuppam, Karvetinagar, Puthalapattu, Srirangarajapuram, and Pathurnatham village in Rama Kuppam mandal, Peddapanjani, Basavapalle, Veerapalle, Chittapara, Baireddipalle, Kotamakanepalle, Gangavaram, Thimmaiahpalle, Gudipaka villages in Gudipala mandal, Pulluru, Puthamaddi, Kanipakam villages in Irala mandal, Bandlapalle, Thenebanda, Mapakshi villages in Chittoormandal, Gangavaram, Kotamakanepalle, Belupalle, Kotamakanepalle, Gudipala, Kuppiganipalle, Basavapalle, Pasumanda villages in Gudipala mandal, Mogili and Ragimanipenta villages in Bangarupalem mandal, E. Ramireddy garipalle village in Pulicherla mandal, Devalampeta, K.V.M.agraharam and Jakkidona village in VeduruKuppam, Ramakrishnapuram Village in Palasamudram mandal, Ragimanipenta village in Bangarupalem, Tirumalakondamambaga village in Karvetinagar mandal, Peddachellaragunta, Kambhampalle, Theetham, Kadapanatham Belupalle, Devadoddi, Gounithimmepalle and Pathurnatham villages in Baireddipalle mandal, Nellipatla and Gongivaripalle, Booragamanda, Nellimanda, Cherukuvaripalle, Gongivaripalle village in Sodam mandal, Cherukuvaripalle, Gandrajupalle, Pathikonda village in Gangavaram mandal. Other grades of black granite also occur in the Chittoor District, and they are mostly used as dimension stones for flooring and wall tiling. The Galaxy Variety of Black Granite is predominant in various villages such as Rajakumaravenkatabah village in Karvetinagar mandal, Allamadugu village in Veduru, Koormanipalle Kuppam mandal, Keenatampalli, Kotalam villages in Yadanmarri Mandal, Chinagandlapalle village in Santhi Puram mandal, Keelapatla village in Gangavaram mandal, Punganur, Bandlapalle village, Ethuru village in Punganur mandal, Pudipatla, Pandillapalle, Gaddamvaripalle, Charala, Gaddamvaripalle village in Chowdepalle mandal, Uddagundlapalle, Muthukur village in Pedda Panjani mandal, Koneru kuppam, Avulapalle village in Somala mandal, Koneru kuppam, MulluruKrishnapuram village in Santhi Puram mandal, Krishnapuram, Kumbarlapalle villages in Venkatagirikota mandals of Chittoor District..

2.3.2. Chittoor Color Granite Variety: Chittoor Colour Granite (Other than silver-waves, Madanapalli white and Iscon white), Colour Granite (Others) colour granite is commercially called as Cheetah Brown. Its appearance is of brown with red patches and is predominantly used for Monuments and also as dimension stones for flooring and wall tiling are Bommaiahpalle, Allamadugu, Perumallapalle, Pathagunta, Thettuguntapalle, Thippinaidupalle, Allamadugu villages in Veduru Kuppam mandal, Ramakrishnapuram, Gangamaambapuram Tungundram, Vepanjeri, Veerakanellore, Kothavenkatapuram, Nandanoor, Kotagaram, Bukkapatnam, Ambodharapalle village in Gangadhara Nellore mandal, Kanathalacheruvu village in Yadamarai mandal and Diguvapalle Village in Chowdepalle mandal, Erramarajupalle village in Karvetinagar mandal, Pulikallu, Guntipalle village in Penumuru mandal, Thettuguntapalle, Thenepalle village in Puthalapattu mandal, Thalambedu, Siddampalle, Thenebanda village in Chittoor mandal, Katikapalle, Durgarajapuram, Pulluru, Suparvajapuram, Venugopalapuram, Arimakulapalle villages in Srirangarajapuram mandal, Guntipalle, Chennasamudraagraha, Thathireddipalle, Guntipalle, Pulikallu, Thathireddipalle villages in Penumuru Mandal, Amudalaputhur, Amudala, Ramakrishnapuram, Gangamaambapuram village in Palasamudrammandal, Pulluru, Gudipalle village in Iralamandal, Rajanam village in Kuppammandal, Cherlopalle village in Thavanampallemandal, Kanamanapalle, Yamaganipalle, Gundlasagaram, Kanamanapalle, Mogalarajapuram village in Gudipalamandal, Peddamallela village in Rompicherlamandal, Muddanapalle, Gesikapalle, Karumatla, Krishnadasanapalle villages in Santhipurammandal, Peddavelagatur village in Pedda Panjani mandal Yanadipalle, Ponnangur, Rajanam, Adavibudugur, Yamaganipalle, Krishnadasanapalle, Gattappanayanipalle villages in Kuppam mandal of Chittor District.

2.3.3. Colour Granite: This variety of granite, predominantly utilized for monuments as well as dimension stones for flooring and wall tiling, is available in several villages including Ramakuppam, Papasamudram, Gudipala, Ramapuram, and Chittapara in the Gudipalam mandal. It can also be found in Peddisettipalle village in Chittoor mandal, Polakala village in Irala mandal, Kotagaram village in Gangadhara Nellore mandal, Surendranagaram village in Karvetinagar mandal, and Palempalle, Bheemaganipalli, Melumdoddi, Raganipalle, Aradigunta, and Mangalam villages in Muddanapalle. Additionally, it is present in Gesikapalle, Karumatla, and Krishnadasanapalle villages in Santhipuram mandal.

2.3.4. Building Stones: Utilized for construction purposes, this building stone is available in Tirumalarajupuram village in Palasamudram mandal, Taduku village in Nagari mandal, Tirumalarajupuram and Naragallu villages in Gudipala, Vanadurgapuram village in Palasamudram mandal, Chitipiralla village in Puthalapattu mandal, and Palempalle village in Punganur mandal.

2.3.5. Gravel: Used for the formation of gravel roads and filling low-lying areas, this gravel is available in Simharajupuram village in Palasamudram mandal, Kosala Nagaram, Vijayapuram, Illathuru, Patha Arcot, Jagannadhapuram, Maharajapuram villages in Vijaya Puram mandal, Taduku, Keelapattu, Satrawada, Gundrajukuppam, Kakavedu, Satrawada Veerakaverirajupuram, Veerakaverirajupuram, and Venkatanarasimharaju villages in Nagari mandal, Kotrakona village in Gangadhara Nellore mandal, Surendranagaram village in Karvetinagar Mandal, and Vanadurgapuram village in Palasamudram mandal.

2.3.6. Road Metal: This road metal is utilized for construction purposes and also as railway ballast. It is available in Tirumalarajupuram village in Palasamudram mandal, as well as in Puthalapattu, Narigapalle, and Thenebanda villages in Chittoor mandal. Additionally, it can be found in Taduku, Gundrajukuppam, Nethamkhandriga, and Satrawada villages in Nagari mandal; Kotrakona and Kotrakona villages in Gangadhara Nellore mandal; Vogu and Bairupalle villages in Venkatagiri Kota Mandal; Keelapalle village in Gangavaram mandal; Bommaiahgaripalle village in Rompicherla mandal; Kolamasanapalle village in Palamaner mandal; Varamanur village in Kuppam mandal; Krishnapuram village in Venkatagiri Kota mandal; Kaligiri village in Penumur mandal; Allamadugu village in Vedurukuppam mandal; Iruvaram village in Chittoor mandal; Kukkalapalle village in Yadamarri mandal; Vanadurgapuram village in Palasamudram mandal; Surendranagaram village in Karvetinagar mandal; Konerukuppam village in Santhipuram mandal; Kolamasanapalle village in Palmaner mandal; Kondamarri village in Chowdepalle mandal; and Booragamanda village in Sodam mandal.

2.3.7. Quartz: The quartz available in Chittoor district is used in paints, ceramic tiles, and glass industries. It is found in Thenepalle village in Puthalapattu mandal and Pulluru village in Irala mandal. The mineral resources map is shown in Figure-21. Details of present mining activities are given in Table-13.

2.6 Impact on environment

The extraction and utilization of minor minerals have become integral to our modern way of life, fueling infrastructure development, construction, and various industries. However, the impact of these activities on the environment cannot be underestimated. Minor minerals, which include granite, road metal, gravel, clay, and more, play a significant role in shaping the natural landscape and ecosystems. The various environmental consequences associated with the extraction and use of minor minerals are:

- i. Habitat Destruction: The mining of minor minerals often entails the removal of topsoil and vegetation, leading to habitat destruction. This can disrupt ecosystems, displace wildlife, and threaten the survival of numerous species. Loss of biodiversity is a significant concern in regions with extensive mining operations.
- ii. Land Degradation: Mining activities can lead to land degradation, including soil erosion and compaction. This not only reduces the land's fertility but also affects its ability to support agriculture and vegetation growth. Moreover, land degradation can contribute to increased vulnerability to natural disasters like floods.
- iii. Water Pollution: Mining operations can contaminate nearby water bodies through the discharge of sediments, chemicals, and heavy metals. This pollution can have detrimental effects on aquatic life, disrupt local hydrology, and compromise the quality of water available for human consumption.
- iv. Air Quality: Dust emissions from mining sites can deteriorate air quality in surrounding areas. The fine particles and pollutants released during excavation and transportation of minor minerals can pose health risks to both workers and nearby communities.
- v. Regulatory Challenges: Enforcing regulations and monitoring mining activities in remote or unregulated areas can be challenging, allowing illegal and unsustainable practices to persist.

The extraction and utilization of minor minerals are essential for economic development, but they come at a cost to the environment. Recognizing the environmental impacts of these activities is crucial for sustainable resource management.

2.7 Remedial Measures

The provisions of Rule 12 (1) and Rule 12 (5) and of Andhra Pradesh Minor Mineral Concession Rules, 1966 allows the State Government to issue the Letters of Intent with the stipulated conditions to submit Approved Mining Plan (AMP), Environment Clearance (EC) and Consent for Establishment (CFE) for grant of lease.

Mine Plan stipulate the maximum permissible annual production of the mineal from the designated lease area and also includes estimated quantum of solid waste generation and its method of disposal, etc. Based on the Approved Mine Plan projections, Environment Management Plan shall be prepared and SEIAA makes the decision to grant the EC based on the EMP.

Leaseholders commit to all the remedial measures in the Mining Plan and the State Environment Impact Assessment Authority (SEIAA) ensures the remedial measures are being adhered to during the tenure of the Environmental Clearance.

Leaseholders in the district have adopted various remedial measures to mitigate the impact of mining on the environment. These measures aim to reduce the environmental footprint of mining operations and address the associated challenges. Some common practices include:

- i. Environmental Impact Assessments (EIAs): Leaseholders conduct comprehensive EIAs to evaluate the potential environmental consequences of mining projects. They shall use this information to develop mitigation strategies.
- ii. Reclamation and Rehabilitation: Leaseholders work to restore mined areas by recontouring landscapes, replanting native vegetation, and stabilizing soils to promote ecosystem recovery.
- iii. Water Management: Proper management of water resources is crucial. Leaseholders use techniques like sedimentation ponds, water recycling, and water treatment facilities to minimize water pollution and ensure responsible water use.

The following preventive measures are being followed for minimizing adverse effects on water regime:

- Small Gully checks, gully check dams, silt settling tanks, silt traps, etc. shall be constructed.
- Along all discharge points leaving the mining lease, into the surrounding area, suitable number of filter walls of sufficient lengths shall be erected across the flow, at intervals, all along the length to prevent suspended solids entering the surrounding streams/ drains/ water courses, to confine the discharge water quality to the permissible limits.

- Regular monitoring may be carried out and further remedial steps as may be necessary may be taken.
- iv. Waste Management: Effective management of mining waste, such as tailings and slag, involves containment in secure facilities to prevent soil and water contamination. Advances in waste disposal technologies are also being explored.

Steps being followed for effective waste management:

- Implementation of practices to minimize waste generation at the source. This involves optimizing extraction techniques, reducing overburden removal, and improving resource utilization.
 - Encouraging recycling and reuse of waste materials wherever possible within the mining operation.
 - Selection of an appropriate disposal methods based on waste characteristics and environmental considerations. Common methods include landfilling, controlled dumping, and backfilling.
 - Treatment of contaminated water and effluents using appropriate technologies before discharge.
- v. Afforestation: Leaseholders carry out a year-wise afforestation plan for the initial years with detailed costing of each plant, its maintenance per piece, etc.

While these measures represent positive steps toward mitigating environmental impact, it's important to note that the effectiveness of these practices can vary widely depending on factors such as the location, scale, and specific mineral being mined. Continuous improvement and adaptation are essential in the mining industry's ongoing efforts

2.8 Reclamation Measures

As per Rule 7A (ii) of Andhra Pradesh Minor Mineral Concession Rules, 1966, Mine Closure Plan shall be submitted by the leaseholder before 6 months of expiry of the lease in the proforma as prescribed by the Director. The Deputy Director concerned shall approve the mine closure plan and ensure compliance of conditions of the approved mine closure plan before expiry of the lease period.

Financial assurance of Rs.50,000/- (Rupees Fifty Thousand) for the quarry lease granted below five(5) hectares and Rs.10,000/- (Rupees Ten Thousand) per Hectare or part thereof for the quarry lease granted five (5) hectares and above, shall be submitted in the form of deposit. If the leaseholder does not reclamate the area as mentioned in the Mine Closure Plan, the deposit shall be forfeited and the Department of Mines & Geology ensures the proper implementation of the Mine Closure Plan.

2.9 Risk Assessment & Disaster Management Plan

Leaseholders conduct comprehensive risk assessment, prepare a model disaster management plan and submit in the Mining Plan.

The leaseholders maintain and arrange following resources at the mine site:

- a) Firefighting equipment
- b) Ambulance services with location
- c) List of volunteer organizations
- d) List of Civil, Police and other authorities to be informed in case of an accident
- e) List of mobile crane operators (Government, Public Sector, and Private Sector).
- f) List of mines, contacts, facility available nearby
- g) List of first aiders and contacts.
- h) List of Officers of DGMS to be informed in case of serious accidents
Concerned DGMS officers concerned is displayed at the mine head.

The leaseholders shall monitor the total execution of the disaster management plan. The resources of all departments including men and material are being promptly made available. They are also conducting regular mock rehearsals with their staff to update the risk register and accordingly, disaster management plan

2.9.1. Mineral Regulatory:

The important functioning of District Mines and geology Officer, Chittoor are:-

1. Achievement of Targets of Mineral Revenue collections being fixed to this office annually
2. Receiving and processing of the Mineral Concession Applications duly conducting the Technical inspection, Survey and demarcation of the Mineral bearing applied areas
3. Execution and Regulation of the operations of the Mining / Quarry leases in accordance with the Acts and Rules
4. Issuing of dispatch permits duly collecting the Advance Royalty / Seig. fee from the lease holders on the minerals produced and intend to dispatch from their leased areas through online permit system
5. Controlling the illegal Mining / Quarrying and transportation by conducting the periodical inspections of the Mines and Quarries and also conducting the surprise vehicular checking and imposing the penalties
6. Finalisation of Demand, Collection and Balance statements of the leases on annual basis

2.10 Plantation & Green Belt Development

Leaseholders are complying with the plantation and green belt development programmes as committed in their Mining Plans.

CHAPTER III: SAND

3.1 Sand Mineral Resources of the Chittoor District

3.1.1 General Sand Mineral Details Chittoor District

(Prepared as per Sustainable Sand Mining Management Guidelines 2016 and 2020)

There are no major rivers in the district. Most of the rivers are ephemeral, carrying large quantities of water immediately after precipitation. The drainage is generally sub-rectilinear to sub-parallel, following straight courses. The important drainage basins are Cheyyeru, Swarnamukhi, Palar, Ponnai, Papagni, Kalangi, and Araniyar. The Swarnamukhi flows eastward, Palar flows southeastward, Ponnai flows southward, and Araniyar flows southeastward shown in Table-20

3.1.2 River Basins in Chittoor District

Chittoor district is partially covered with 06 major basins i.e., Arani, Kusasthali, Palar, Pennar, Ponnair, Swarnamukhi and partially covered 06 minor basins i.e., Arani, Cheyyeru, Kushustali, Palar, Ponnair and Swarnamukhi. The Palar basin (Ponnai, KaundinyaNadi and Malattar rivers) covered in Chittoor district is about 80% of the total area. The remaining 20% the area covered the Pennar basin (Bahuda and Pincha rivers), Swarnamukhi basin, Ponnair basin, Araniyar basin, Kushustali basin (Nagari River). The six minor basins are further divided into 68 sub basins subsequently divided into 1,660 cascades. The hydrological units of the district are shown in Table-21 and the drainage system with description is shown in Table-22.

As per the WALTA Rules 2004, the sand mining is permitted in the III Order Streams such as Gundlakamma River, Vogeru Vagu, Romperu Vagu, only if the deposition of sand is more than 5,000 Cu m. The sand excavated in these areas are only allowed for local use and not for commercial purposes. Therefore, undertaking replenishment studies for the streams of III and below orders are not required. List of the river lengths and salient features of the rivers in the district are shown in Table-23 and Table-24.

3.1.2.1. The Cheyyeru River: The Cheyyeru is formed by the confluence of the rivers Bahuda and Puncha that originate in Andhra Pradesh. The two streams join at Rayavaram to form the Cheyyeru which then flows for 87 km before joining the Pennar as a right bank tributary at Gundlamada in the Sidhout taluk of Kadapa district, draining a total area of 7,325 km².

The Gunjan River is a tributary of the Cheyyeru and along the Gunjana valley several paleolithic settlements have been discovered. There are several gorges on the river including one after the confluence of its headstreams and the Balarajupalle gorge. The Cheyair series of rocks in the Cudappah rock system of the Eastern Ghats, consisting largely of shales, is named after the Cheyyeru River.

The Cheyyeru project comprising the 409-metre long Annamayya earthen dam that provides irrigation facilities to its catchment zone is on this river in the Rajampet mandal of Kadapa district. The Togurpet project, also in the Kadapa district, is also on the Cheyyeru and was completed during the Fourth Five-Year Plan period. Percolation tanks have been developed on the river at Nandalur to augment irrigation facilities in Kadapa.

3.1.2.2. Arani River: Arani, also known as Araniar or Araniyar, is a 108 km long river in India. It flows through the states of Tamil Nadu and Andhra Pradesh. It has a drainage area of about 1535 km² with over one half lying in Andhra Pradesh.

The Arani River rises at Sadasiva konda at an elevation of 1040 m in the Narayanavanam Protected Forest in the eastern slopes of the Eastern Ghats in Chittoor district, flows initially in a general southerly direction and later in an easterly direction to join the southwest tip of the Pulicat Lake in Minjur Block, Tiruvallur district and then into the Bay of Bengal through tidal inlets after flowing in a 6-km long narrow lagoon separated by a barrier island. The Arani River basin is bounded by the Swarnamukhi river basin towards north, Kalangi and a minor river basin towards northeast, and Kortallaiyar (also called Kusasthali, Nagari and Kosasthalaiyar) river basin towards south and west. It lies in Karvetinagar, KVB Puram, Nagalapuram, Narayanavanam, Nindra, Pichatur, Puttur, Satyavedu, Vadimalapet, Vedurukuppam and Vijayapuram mandals of Chittoor district, a little in Tada mandal in Nellore district, and Ellapuram, Arani, Gummidiipundi, Minjur, Poondi and Sholavaram blocks in Gummidiipundi, Ponneri, Tiruvallur and Utukkottai taluks of Tiruvallur district in Tamil Nadu. The VogeruVagu is Major River in the district and the tributaries are NallamadaVagu, NakkaVagu. The NallamadaVagu and NakkaVagu originated near Gouthikonda hills, Nekarikallu of Palnadu district and enter into north part of the Bapatla district, merged with NagarajuKalva and joining to Bay of Bengal near Perali in Bapatla district.

3.1.2.3. Palar River: Palar is a river of southern India. It rises in the Nandi Hills in Chikkaballapura district of Karnataka state,[1] and flows 93 kilometres (58 mi) in Karnataka, 33 kilometres (21 mi) in Andhra Pradesh and 222 kilometres (138 mi) in Tamil Nadu before reaching its confluence into the Bay of Bengal at Vayalur about 75 kilometres (47 mi) south of Chennai.[2] It flows as an underground river for a long distance only to emerge near Bethamangala town, from where, gathering water and speed, it flows eastward down the Deccan Plateau.

3.1.2.4. Swarnamukhi River: Swarnamukhi is a river in southern India. This is an independent river which rises at an elevation of 300 m in the Eastern Ghats ranges near Pakala in Tirupati district and flows through 130 kms towards Bay of Bengal. The holy Hindu temples of Tirumala and Sri Kalahasti are located in the river basin. It was mentioned as Mogaleru in the works of Dhurjati. Kalyani Dam with 25 million cubic meters live storage was constructed in 1977 across its tributary Kalyani River.

3.1.3 Process of Deposition of Sediments in the Rivers of the District

Sediment transport is a natural process, and many have argued that the point of rivers is to move sediment downstream. However, with land use changes, e.g., deforestation and construction; agricultural practices; and development activities, accelerated erosion rate is ubiquitous. Sediment in the water column reduces transparency and can be deposited downstream and exacerbate flooding. Three principal sources of sediment are the following:

Sediment transport is the movement of organic and inorganic particles by water. In general, the greater the flow, the more sediment will be conveyed. Water flow can be strong enough to suspend particles in the water column as they move downstream, or simply push them along the bottom of a waterway. Transported sediment may include mineral matter, chemicals and pollutants, and organic material. Another name for sediment transport is sediment load. The total load includes all particles moving as bedload, suspended load, and wash load.

3.1.3.1. Bedload

As the name suggests, this element of sediment movement consists of loose, granular particles at the sediment-water interface (such as a stream bed or tidal flat). Air or water that moves across the bed will be able to move grains if the flow velocity is great enough to overcome the force of gravity and any resistance at grain contacts. This is the threshold velocity (Figure-23).

Bedload contains two main components:

- the traction load, or traction carpet, and
- the saltation loads.

The various components of force involved in initiation of grain movement are shown above. Here, fluid flowing over a sediment bed produces shear stresses that can be resolved into a component of drag (parallel to the bed) and a lift component normal to the bed. At the threshold velocity when the resultant fluid force on grains is greater than gravity, grains begin to roll, slide and jostle along the bed like a moving carpet – the traction carpet.

3.1.3.2. Suspended Load Most natural flows in rivers, shallow marine settings and air are turbulent. Even at low-flow velocities, the speed and trajectories of flow can vary considerably – witness the eddies and boils in seemingly tranquil streams. Very fine particulate sediment (particularly clays) can be kept in suspension for long periods by turbulence; the stresses generated by turbulent flow balance or overcome the gravitational force acting on the particles.

If turbulence decreases significantly, for example when a river empties into a lake, then most particles will gradually settle to the sediment bed. The rate at which a particle settles out of suspension is called the settling velocity, where the force of gravity (downwards) exceeds the combined effects of upward-directed buoyancy forces acting on a grain and the drag on a particle caused by fluid (viscous) resistance. Thus, the rate of settling depends on the size, shape and density of particles, and the viscosity of the fluid. In general, settling through air is much more rapid than through water (Figure-24).

Both bedload and suspension load are important processes in the generation of sedimentary structures. In particular, bedload transport of loose sand is the critical process for growth of bedforms and their internal cross-stratification (crossbedding). The description of bedforms (crossbeds) and the flow conditions (flow regime) under which they form have been described in other posts.

3.1.3.3. Wash Load

The wash load is the portion of sediment that will remain suspended even when there is no water flow. The wash load is a subset of the suspended load. This load is comprised of the finest suspended sediment (typically less than 0.00195 mm in diameter). The wash load is differentiated from the suspended load because it will not settle to the bottom of a waterway during a low or no flow period. Instead, these particles remain in permanent suspension as they are small enough to bounce off water molecules and stay afloat. However, during flow periods, the wash load and suspended load are indistinguishable. Turbidity in lakes and slow-moving rivers is typically due the wash load 8. When the flow rate increases (increasing the suspended load and overall sediment transport), turbidity also increases. While turbidity cannot be used to estimate sediment transport, it can approximate suspended sediment concentrations at a specific location (Figure-25).

3.1.3.4. Settleable Solids

The suspended particles that fall to the bottom of a water body are called settleable solids. As they are found in riverbeds and streambeds, these settled solids are also known as bedded sediment. The size of settleable solids will vary by water system – in high flow areas, larger, gravel-sized sediment will settle out first. Finer particles, including silt and clay, can be carried all the way out to an estuary or delta (Figure-26).

3.1.3.5. Sediment Deposition

Sediment is necessary to the development of aquatic ecosystems through nutrient replenishment and the creation of benthic habitat and spawning areas. These benefits occur due to sediment deposition – when suspended particles settle down to the bottom of a body of water. This settling often occurs when water flow slows down or stops and heavy particles can no longer be supported by the bed turbulence. Sediment deposition can be found anywhere in a water system, from high mountain streams, to rivers, lakes, deltas and floodplains. However, it should be noted that while sediment is important for aquatic habitat growth, it can cause environmental issues if the deposition rates are too high, or too low. Sediment transportation and Deposition depends upon various factors like Slope of the Area, Annual Rainfall, Lithology, flow intensity of River, Geomorphology, Soil, Geology and Land use.

In sediment transport a distinction is generally made between fine and coarse sediment, because the transport mechanisms differ. Coarse sediment (grain size $>63 \mu\text{m}$) tends to be characterised by particles that remain separate and are chemically inert; fine sediments ($<63 \mu\text{m}$) on the other hand tend to come together as flocculated populations (flocs) and have the tendency to attract organic material and contaminants to their surface. A great deal has been researched and written about the break up and flocculation of these primary particles under turbulence and subsequent settling (e.g., Uncles et al., 2010). These differences imply important variations in the rate of transport and settling characteristics for the same flow conditions for different sediments. The nature of the physical environment also has an important bearing on this, in that fine sediment tend to be found in sheltered environments (shallow, enclosed estuarine systems), while beaches on open coasts are characterised by coarser materials. This reflects the energy of the water in which the particles become suspended and their subsequent fate (Figure-27).

Rates of transport of material are generally expressed in terms of a flux, as kg/s for example, where this figure is generally obtained by considering the product of the flow rate (in m^3/s) and the concentration of material in suspension (kg/m^3). This does not necessarily imply a requirement for the material to be suspended; it is equally possible to express a bed load using the same units, for example, but it does imply that to obtain an estimate of the sediment flux it is necessary to know both the concentration and the flow rate over a given cross section. Both these quantities can be measured and there are a variety of techniques available to do this, using insitu collection or sampling, in situ optical or acoustic methods, or remote sensing from aircraft or satellites (Uncles and Mitchell, 2017)

Process of Deposition of Sediments in the Rivers of the District Sand is deposited because of the following reasons: (a) Floods: The surface or strip of relatively smooth land adjacent to a river channel constructed (or in the process of being constructed) by the present river in its existing regimen and covered with water when the river overflows its banks at times of high water. It is built of alluvium carried by the river during floods and deposited in the sluggish water beyond the influence of the swiftest current (b) Valley fill: The unconsolidated sediment deposited by any agent so as to fill or partly fill a valley.

3.1.4 Replenishment Study

All the rivers in Chittoor district are of 3rd Order streams. The Sand extraction in Chittoor District shall be as per Rule 23(1)(a) of AP Water Land and Tree Rules, 2004 where the transportation of sand shall be by means of bullock carts/ Tractors for the local use.

In case, if the sand deposition exceeds 5,000 Cu.Mn a part of the stretch, then manual mining shall be permitted after obtaining Statutory Clearances. The District Collector shall put in place proper administrative mechanism for enforcement of WALTA regulations in extraction and transportation of sand in I, II & III order streams.

Sand extraction is permitted for commercial usage in sand reaches of III Order streams having sand deposition of more than 5,000 Cum, after obtaining AMP, EC, CFE & CFO (G.O. Ms. No. 2, PR&RD Dept, dated 06.01.2022).

3.1.11 Sand Reaches Details in Chittoor District

The Department of Mines and Geology has already identified sand reach points in Chittoor district. The locations details of these sand reach points are provided by the District Mines and Geology Officer, Chittoor. Based on these location details, the sand reach points are depicted in Figure-28, Figure-29, Figure-30, and Figure-31. Pre-monsoon and post-monsoon sand reach points are shown in Figure-32 and Figure-33 respectively. Probable sand-bearing areas in Chittoor District are illustrated in Figure-34.
